

6 September 2023

Dear residents, businesses and stakeholders

Night-time work on Thorndon Quay, 18 September - 6 October 2023

We will be carrying out road work along Thorndon Quay and the south end of Hutt Road, over several nights, in September this year.

To safely deliver this work and minimise disruption, it will be done outside of peak hours with traffic and noise management plans in place.

When

Work will be carried out on Monday to Friday nights, from 7pm until 5am, between 18 September and 6 October. This work is weather dependent, so dates could change.

Why we're doing this work

Engineers will be carrying out underground investigations at eight sites to check the exact location of utilities, soil and groundwater levels.

This work is part of the Thorndon Quay and Hutt Road project to provide safe and reliable travel choices along this road and create a more attractive street environment. This route is the second busiest bus route in Wellington and the busiest cycle route.

What to expect

The crew will dig a hole or trench to conduct investigations, usually for one, sometimes two nights at each site. At the end of each shift, the hole will be refilled and resurfaced. Please check the map to see the specific locations.

We will be taking steps to minimise disruption. Work is happening either on the side or in the middle of the road, with traffic management in place. Footpaths will still be accessible and those in cars will be able to safely drive around roadwork areas. Any changes to bus stops will be minimal and signposted.

To minimise equipment noise, concrete cutting will be undertaken earlier in the evening and completed by 11pm, acoustic screens will surround the site and a hydrovac truck to remove soil will be run at a lower noise level to minimise disruption.

Thank you in advance for your patience and understanding as we carry out this work on this busy commuter corridor, to help make our city more liveable and accessible for everyone.
